

The accomplished German driver delved into the intricate details that would inevitably accompany a shift towards electric power units. While acknowledging the imperative of Formula ...

Sebastian Vettel raises crucial concerns about the 2026 F1 power units. Discover his thoughts on innovation, sustainability, and the future of motorsport!

Motor sport star Sebastian Vettel has criticised the "culture of shame" around carbon footprints as he spoke about wanting to see more F1 voices speak up on sustainability.

Four-time World Champion Sebastian Vettel has admitted that he is "not entirely convinced" about F1's new 2026 power unit regulations.

Sebastian Vettel may have stepped away from the Formula 1 grid, but the four-time world champion continues to keep a close eye on the sport's future - and he isn't sold on its biggest ...

Four-time World Champion Sebastian Vettel has admitted that he is "not entirely convinced" about F1's new 2026 power unit regulations.

Vettel openly acknowledged that working in Formula 1, with the beliefs he holds about the need for renewable energy, makes him hypocritical due to the nature of the fuel used within his ...

Formula 1 aims to be climate-neutral from 2026. For this, synthetic fuels will be used and not electric engines. According to former driver Sebastian Vettel, it is not possible to drive with ...

Sebastian Vettel, former F1 driver, acknowledges his environmental hypocrisy, but continues to advocate for sustainability and reduce his carbon footprint.

Four-time World Champion Sebastian Vettel has sounded the alarm over the new 2026 Formula 1 power-unit rules, saying they risk repeating the expensive missteps of the 2014 hybrid era.

Web: <https://www.capturedmoments.co.za>